Soccer documentary “PHENOMS Germany” chronicles the journey of five Bundesliga players and premiere in the USA

The premiere of the 66-minute format “PHENOMS Germany” which highlights the rise and struggle of the most exceptional under 21 players in professional soccer will be announced on Monday by FOX Sports.

The premiere of the documentary will be aired by FOX, Bundesliga’s broadcast partner in the US, on 11 June at 8:30 PM on their premium channel FOX Sports 1. and exhibits the career paths of Bundesliga players Benjamin Henrichs (Bayer 04 Leverkusen), Julian Weigl (Borussia Dortmund), Max Meyer (FC Schalke 04), Mahmoud Dahoud (Borussia Dortmund) and Leon Goretzka (FC Schalke 04), the current participant of the German national team. Among others, the documentary allows viewers to experience the personal lives of the players through unprecedented behind-the-scenes access and shows the social backgrounds of these upcoming stars. PHENOMS joined them on their way to becoming the next generation of German Bundesliga stars from the promising young professional to international champions, like Leon Goretzka, who will play for FC Bayern München in the next season, and Benjamin Henrichs, and U21 European champions Mahmoud Dahoud and Max Meyer.

This outstanding project emphasizes the successful work of Bundesliga and their clubs as “talent factory”, the connection to young local heroes “made in Germany” and being the league of the current World Champions. DFL, Bundesliga International and Bundesliga clubs supported this project for more than two years by arranging on-site filming in Bundesliga stadiums, organizing workshops with clubs and accessing interviews for FOX production teams. Besides the access to the Germany’s next Bundesliga stars, Bundesliga opened doors as well to provide access to young Bundesliga players from other nationalities showing off their talent in the Bundesliga, which will be part of further PHENOMS documentaries focusing on other football nations.
